Greetings

Welcome to Columbus Museum of Art (CMA) and Designer Showcase. Once again, this Central Ohio tradition has taken up residence at CMA, this time in the Walter Wing. We challenged designers to transform a blank canvas, showcasing their design as art. Enjoy the results and look for works of art from CMA's collection integrated into some of the creative spaces.

Designer Showcase would not be possible without the countless hours spent by our Women's Board volunteers. Their leadership continues to make this event a cherished fundraiser to Central Ohio visitors and beyond.

Thank you for your support of this singular fundraiser. We hope to see you at more of the Designer Showcase events planned throughout the month. Welcome to new visitors and a special thanks to our extended Museum family for their continued support.

All the best,

Nannette V. Maciejunes
 Executive Director
 Columbus Museum of Art

Significance

Designer Showcase, formerly Decorators' Show House, is a biennial event presented by CMA Women's Board that raises funds to support creative experiences at CMA such as our new Wonder School, a laboratory preschool transforming learning for young children and the educators who shape them. The signature event has been a central Ohio tradition for more than 40 years. In 2017, the event location was transferred from a private residence to the CMA galleries. This innovative move celebrates creative design while honoring the storied tradition of show houses. Visitors to DSC will enjoy the chance to explore exciting interior design in the heart of downtown Columbus, while enjoying the benefits of convenient parking, extended hours, and accessibility.

Designs and Designers

Designer Showcase is a juried event offering premier designers the unique opportunity of a blank canvas in which to create their designs. Fourteen local designers will transform galleries in the Margaret M. Walter Wing into 18 creative living spaces, including a kitchen and a bathroom. Each Thursday evening during DSC, visitors will be able to meet and to chat with the designers. About the Columbus Museum of Art Women's Board: CMA Women's Board is an organization of women committed to promoting the mission of the Columbus Museum of Art. Women's Board members support the Museum through organizing fundraisers, volunteering at the Museum, and by serving as Museum ambassadors. In addition, Women's Board members gather for social opportunities connected to art and the mission of CMA.

Welcome

The Women's Board of the Columbus Museum of Art (CMA) is pleased to welcome you to the 2019 Designer Showcase. A biennial tradition since 1975, the Showcase raises funds to support creative programming for families and children at CMA, such as the new Wonder School, a laboratory preschool transforming learning for young children and the educators who shape them.

Formerly presented inside private homes around Columbus, the Designer Showcase officially took up residence in the gallery space of the CMA in 2017. With this move, the Designer Showcase, previously known as Decorators' Show House, has been renamed this year. The updated name celebrates interior design as art and emphasizes the new location of Showcase inside the CMA Margaret M. Walter Wing.

As a visitor to Showcase, we invite you to explore the 18 creative living spaces on display. Fourteen local designers have been juried into the event and have transformed blank slate gallery spaces into rooms designed to inspire and delight. We are excited to welcome back many returning designers from previous Showcases and to debut several new designers. We could not be more thrilled to present this year's line-up of designs. Several designers have even incorporated original artwork from the CMA permanent collection into their one-of-a-kind spaces!

We hope you enjoy all that Designer Showcase has to offer. Join us Saturday, May 4, at the Garden Party at Designer Showcase, featuring an interactive presentation by A Proper Garden (tickets sold separately). Attend Designer Nights each Thursday 6:00pm–9:00pm to meet with the designers in person, learn more about their displays, and enjoy cocktails and music. Pop-up Shops featuring local artists will be open each Thursday of Showcase. The Garden Shop, a beloved Showcase tradition, returns this year – pick up an annual or perennial at the front entrance of the museum as a sweet memento of your visit (Saturdays and Sundays, 11:00am–3:00pm). And don't pass up the opportunity to discover your own new treasures to take home at Treasures & Trinkets, located inside Showcase and open every day April 19 – May 19. This year's Designer Showcase ticket also grants you admission to the special exhibition Life in the Age of Rembrandt: Dutch Masterpieces from the Dordrecht Museum.

We want to extend our deepest appreciation to everyone who helped bring Designer Showcase 2019 to life: our designers for their creativity and ingenuity; our sponsors for their generous donations; our committee chairs for their relentless passion and dedication to Designer Showcase; the CMA staff for their guidance and enthusiasm; and our CMA Women's Board President Marketa Leeuwenburg for her support through every step of the planning process. Most of all, we thank you, our guests, for supporting the Designer Showcase and the Columbus Museum of Art!

Welcome to Showcase!

Huffman & Huffman's design for the Columbus Designer Showcase is the Living Room of a pianist, composer and 20th century art collector.

The Living Room pays homage to the works of Edmund Kuehn and the creativity of the imagined composer. Mr. Kuehn was born in Columbus and studied at the Columbus College of Art and Design. He served as Curator, Assistant Director and Director of the Columbus Museum of Art.

Our musician's apartment is located in downtown Columbus. The interior architecture provides a structure for our composer to write music, play the piano, entertain, and relax. The light colored walls allow the strong colors, lines and shapes of Kuehn's work to take center stage. The choice of materials (such as marble, steel, velvet and sisal), the layering of objects and the sophisticated color palette, creates an inviting space for all who enter.

LIBRARY/OFFICE

The Nabu Room by Mix Design Collective

A Place of Wisdom, Learning, and Inspiration

The Nabu Room is named after the Babylonian god of wisdom, learning, and writing. This study embodies a mix of the complex and simple, masculine and feminine, bold and calm. These design elements come together to create more than just an environment conducive to writing and reading. They foster imagination and creative thinking, which, to us, are the foundation for all great work.

Sun Rooms are becoming the main area in homes today. The perfect space to entertain and relax. Bursting rays of sunlight, grey groupings of clouds, bold colors of fall leaves and crisp and clean frost from the snow... this year around space is sure to be the area that your guest will gravitate. The vision behind this design is to take each guest on a journey to the wild side! Thinking outside the box with a non-traditional sun room our selections are strategically incorporated. From the leopard area rug... moss covered wall... eased edges follow the natural curves of the wood elements, highlighting the organic beauty of the rustic furnishings implemented bringing in the life of Mother Nature – full of character – yet sophisticated enough to relax and entertain.

At Nth Degree our goal is to create unique experiences one space at a time – bringing life and ambiance using textiles, fresh/faux floral arrangements, home furnishings and accessories.

John Wilson's team designed this room with an updated nod to 1970's chic style. Our room inspiration began with a fabulous faux agate wall covering. Our wall covering is mesmerizing, with the pattern of a structured mineral and provides a dramatic backdrop as our focal point of the room. Enhancing the wall covering are custom walnut columns which are adorned with opulent oversized sconces, holding elongated mirrors. The carved wood frame of the bed is upholstered with a channeled pattern of opulent velvet, and flanking the bed are sculptural bachelor chests. Acrylic and metal benches sit at the foot of the bed and are topped in lush faux fur. Opposite the bed resides a geometric credenza against the wall of windows, which is then accented by two oversized chairs with an unexpected delicate iron base. The walls are a dramatic black/green that sets off this swanky throwback look. With accents of brass decor, velvets, and a rich color palette this room encompasses all that is 70's chic, resulting in an opulent and trippy experience.

GAME ROOM

The Carraway Club by KP Designs and Associates

A sophisticated game room. With a wink and a nod to grander times, our sleek, urbane retreat will transport you into an adult playscape, complete with refined and distinctive details to satisfy even the most sophisticated palettes.

Enjoy a neatly poured Manhattan or bourbon on the rocks while basking in the fireside glow. Our seductive leather sofa and plush velvet chairs provide maximum style and comfort while the fireplace – surrounded by leather tile and a pine wood mantel – provides a backdrop of rugged luxury. Genteel games of chess can be played on the custom crafted walnut table with touches of gold metal trim or improve your handicap on our unparalleled putting green, complete with a gilded gold cup.

To capture the debonair spirit of our game room we utilized rich tones of green and navy with warm tobacco browns, accentuated by pops of chartreuse. The warmth and depth of the palette makes the space feel intimate – conjuring up feelings of a 1920's speakeasy. Stunning crystal chandeliers and pendants suspend from the ceilings bringing elegance and stature from the top down. Lastly, we layered in an abundance of textural interest, combining natural sisal, cowhide, lush moss and opalescent capiz to make the space feel as eclectic as it is polished.

The Dutch Master – at once time-bound to an era of formality – and timeless, lending a sense of repose to an environment for study, reflection or relaxation. All elements of the den speak to the balance Fritz seeks in combining unexpected materials, forms and finishes – the character of the ancient and irreplaceable harmoniously co-existing with contemporary palettes, furnishings and materials. The design re-interprets the representational still life and portrait in abstract, modernist planes and lines. To ground the space is the monumental slab of Cambria framed in rusticated wood, offset by gilded books. Contrasted with this heft is the lightness of almost-floating Poltrona-Frau furnishings. Just as with the Jan Brueghel still life and the Ferdinand Bol portrait, close examination rewards the viewer. Masterful stitching details in the Italian leather and Maharam felt echo the exacting brush-strokes that create suffused contours and ethereal light – the ideal subjects for a contemplation space.

A large room in a modern house that combines features of a living room with those of a dining room.

This is where I started this journey. I imagined a big modern house with many large rooms. Off one side of the kitchen, a formal vintage style dining room, and off the other, the great room. I wanted to achieve a very warm and cozy environment where one might sit and read a book by Joan Didion or maybe even listen to an old vinyl LP by Sarah Vaughan or Chet Baker. I decided to offset the natural wood-colored floors with warm black walls and a bright white ceiling. The fabrics I chose are classic Ralph Lauren wool flannels ranging in colors from medium to charcoal grey. The mindset was less is more, mixing classic vintage shapes and objects. Everything in the room has its place. Alongside the general sitting area, an old round Biedermeier table sits in a satin black finish. The table is surrounded by dark metal armchairs with black decorative linen cushions. Whether for an aperitif or a digestive, a glass of wine with some fine cheese, or a good book or a quick nap, this is your secret place.

In a world full of HASHTAGS I've set the table for the future! Formal dining has died so let's have fun! I've invited a few friends from all over the globe to help me turn a windowless room into an inclusive experience that represents the future of design. Exclusive is OUT and INCLUSIVE is in! Frans Smit is one of my favorite artists and he has created artwork specifically for this installation. In an ever-changing world, what do you see? You may notice something different every time you see this space. Frans perspective is taking something completely normal and putting an absurd twist in which is why I have selected his artwork to be featured in this installation. Style meets function with a table set by Lindey's. Lisa Jarvis has provided artistic cabinet hardware to coordinate with Frans portfolio of artwork, which is also displayed digitally on SONY matte black 4k televisions from Genesis Home. I create spaces that are timeless and engaging. They are a reflection of their owner!

The Hearth Room is traditionally a room central to daily family living – an intimate but key gathering space, anchored by the warmth provided by the primary fireplace.

My first vision for creating this room came as I sat in the back room of a storied carpet house off the winding streets of Marrakech, while my husband and I watched as carpet after carpet (each a work of art) was laid out in front of us. The nuanced colors, textures, and materials were deeply rooted in tradition, but refreshingly current in their authenticity. This balance between the old and the new was so apparent throughout our trip, and shaped many of the inspirations drawn. As always, travel and the experiences gleaned are key to my design process, and the recent time spent in Africa was both eye opening and inspiring.

I wanted to create a space that was a thoughtful marriage of the modern and antique; one that relied on true materials and a palette that transferred a sense of serenity. In Morocco, neutrals and whites are thought to convey good luck, beauty, femininity and cleanliness – those are the backbone of the room. Favorite books, a sculpture of an African lioness, travel photographs and other objects add texture and personality, giving the room a story.

This kitchen is based around mixing and layering textures to add interest to the space. We started with the dramatic ombre faux finish paint from black to white. The next step was using 3 different cabinet finishes to add depth to design. First by grounding the whole space with a dark charcoal island and topping it with a matte marble looking quartz Cambria top. The main focus in the kitchen is a grand looking hood that has a brushed brass band wrapped along the bottom. This is a metal accent that you will find throughout the whole design. To add another layer of texture, there are the 2 different types of wood: quarter sawn white oak and distressed maple. We find by combining all these fixtures and finishes we have created a living comfortable space, that translates beyond just one style. That's why we call it "beautiful, bold, blended design"

EATING AREA

Kitchen Annex by Courtney Jones

The eating area is an extension of the hearth room, both in character and as a key gathering place for family. To quote a favorite design icon, "a room is complete when you are called to it for respite. [if] you see relief ahead in the form of a chair in a particular room, perhaps with a good book or a glass of wine, you have finished" -Darryl Carter-

Rick Kelley Builders is honored to be chosen to design and build the laundry room for the 2019 Columbus Museum of Art Designer Showcase and also be the first builder/designer to be chosen in the history of the event.

Keeping in the theme of a country estate, this space includes a built-in dog wash provided by Ferguson to keep the dogs clean after a morning hike. It has beautiful wood cabinetry provided by Distinctive Kitchen & Bath that includes loads of countertop space to clean your saddle and bridle after an afternoon ride, as well as plenty of space to hang your hat and riding jacket at the end of the day. In addition, this space also includes an amazing washer and dryer provided by Ferguson, an antique Persian rug on the floor, and an antique wash board from the mid 1800's.

My love for London England, my hometown of London Ohio and the growing Royal Family were the influencers for the theme of my room. What child wouldn't want to feel like royalty with their own English themed playroom? I felt that this theme could grow with a child from Kindergarten through the Middle School age extremely well.

Clients crave authenticity and that is why I've created a room that brings in replications of items from the streets of London England. A Red Phone Box a Double Decker Bus and a shadow of the London skyline create the feel of being right there! The Big Ben clock even works!

The Double-decker bus in the room can function as a closet and a playhouse. Behind the bed is a wall of custom draperies that we have created to soften the feeling of the room as well as to create some sound absorption. Brick walls are the hallmark of this street scene with a classic appeal and the cool red sofa is a great spot for reading and hanging out with friends.

Take a minute and enjoy the sights and sound of London, England!

MASTER BEDROOM

Bedroom Secret Song by Neal Hauschild

Featuring intricate carved songbirds at the hearth of the headboard, which was once congregated on the balcony of the world renown furniture designer – Christopher Guy's home as a child. This stunning massive masterpiece is the highlight of this space along with several pieces from CG's collection. Dark wood accents, hues of blues, monochromatic colors of greens and patterns of textiles creates Nth Degree's signature eclectic scene. Toning down the vision to create balance we will incorporate a neutral color by dressing the bed with off white luxurious bedding, bold textures of custom pillows and soften the walls by draping them with fabric. Gold metal knobs adorned to the dresser and accents of gold embellished on the nightstands reflect from the 3 tier mirrors adding dimension. This design melody is music to the eye!

Nth Degree is setting today's design style to be transitional in nature, but we always keep it timeless and classic... Creating a space that you can sing in for generations.

Bringing together the parts of one's life is the living embodiment of going green. The trend of reducing living spaces has encouraged relooking at how we use rooms. We should love the spaces we are in, and should surround ourselves with items that bring us joy. Such was the creation of this modern twist on the dressing room space. Based around the rococo style borne settee, the étagère and side dressers complement the overall design. The mix of metallic accents throughout give lifts of light on the dark backgrounds.

The artwork selected for this room is also a mix of formal and contemporary. The 17th century Chinese urns showcase the blending of form and material. The blues are strong and rich, as the nature that surrounds us. The same colors are reflected in the paintings.

At Nth Degree we strive to create spaces that reflect the multiple aspects of a client.

A Port in a Storm by Neal Hauschild

Celestial Navigation by Richard Petry is the inspiration for this space by Nth Degree. Its review of nature with the enhancement of outside hands is found mimicked by the natural curve of the acrylic claw foot tub that takes center stage. This room is pure and calming. The tranquil wall colors are tint step downs of the master bedroom and dressing room lending connection between the spaces. The use of multiple metal accents the trends of both fashion and home décor. The antler chandelier adds just the right whimsical touch.

Don't be afraid to mix natural and man-made, they build on one another. Just as in Celestial Navigation the multiple small lines build on one another to create a roadmap. It's when we limit ourselves to the individual tree that we fail to see the majestic forest before us and we get lost.
